Is there a way of doing a ruby check to see if a certain function has already been defined in the current running environment? Something along the lines of: def my_func(foo) #code end if some_kind_of_magic_exists? my_func else my_func('foo') # won't be defined end To be clear, this question applies only to Ruby, and not any other language that I know of. A: require'method' (def my_func 'foo') #=> nil (def my_func 'foo') #=> :foo Proteomic study of malignant pleural mesothelioma derived fluid. Malignant pleural mesothelioma (MPM) is an aggressive cancer resistant to current treatment regimens. MPM management is often hampered due to the poor understanding of the complex pathogenesis of this malignancy, and the clinical phenotype of MPM. Here, we utilized a proteomic approach to investigate a MPM derived fluid, in order to identify potential biomarkers for MPM. First, we show that MPM derived fluid contains a fraction (8.7%) of

Compared with the high-flying investors who made billions off the tech bubble, venture investors today make less money and have more headaches in a down market. . The two U.S. troops shot and killed at Fort Hood were unarmed, their equipment was left by the roadside and their autopsies revealed no explosives were in their bodies.Cut the butter into small pieces, and add it to the dry ingredients. Mix well. Add the egg and milk. Mix well. Add the baking soda. Mix well. Add the chocolate chips. Mix well. Fold in the blueberries, raisins, and cranberries. Drop by heaping spoonful onto an ungreased cookie sheet. Drop the cookies by spoonful and flatten them a bit. Bake the cookies at 350° for 12-15 minutes. Enjoy! There are several ways to make marshmallow. This is my favorite. It's pretty quick to make and very easy. And it does look so good! In a large bowl, combine 1/2 cup of room temperature water, the gelatin, corn syrup, and salt. Let stand in a warm place until the gelatin is soft and translucent (about 2-3 minutes), but not stiff. Add the cream, rum, and vanilla extract. Stir well. In a small saucepan, bring the water to a boil and add the marshmallow mix. Stir well. Boil, stirring constantly, for one minute. Remove from heat, and stir until smooth. Add the heavy cream and stir well. Pour into a greased baking sheet and let stand at room temperature for at least 1 hour before slicing and serving. I think that's all the baking we'll do for today - I can't believe it's already time for next week. Thanks for all the wonderful comments on the last post - such a nice response. I especially enjoyed the story about going to sleep with children (and dogs) last night - I laughed out loud - it sure is fun to have such awesome friends in this blogging world. Happy Holidays to you. Peace, joy, and good tidings. Tanya Heehee - the marshmallow thing is my absolute favorite thing to eat after chocolate, especially on a hot summer day.
